"I am the last witness of inflamed times.

When my eyes were ablaze I was finally able to see the great truth with the clarity of snow. I did not choose to be a piece of this puzzle. You can fit in, if you want to. Maybe the rest of the world is wrong and you don't know what to do with your reason. With so much reason. That's possible. Everything is possible, buddy. Give me your hand, give away your cardboard crown, and come with me. Even though it seems impossible to you, in spite of so much darkness, all is light. All is future in the kingdom of the helpless. May the times continue to change. The bluest sky in the world will continue to shine above our heads. A sky like the one we have always had. That never changes." David Palomar

"With this show we wonder about what our role is in the world. With ancient chants and other new ones, we will challenge the clock of time to build a character who is as human as he is timeless. (...) This Desamparao looks so much like us that his respiration ends up being ours.” José Troncoso

David Palomar's singing is imbued with the flamenco flavour of the La Viña neighbourhood of Cadiz, where he was born. His styles and creative personality preserve the essence left by Manolo Vargas, Pericón, Santiago Donday and La Perla de Cádiz. He has travelled all over the world with the companies of Javier Barón, Paco Peña and Cristina Hoyos, and has collaborated with Carlos Saura, Vicente Amigo, Pepe de Lucía, José Mercé, Alejandro Sanz, Miguel Poveda and Pasión Vega. He has won the 2016 Bandera de Andalucía award, the 6th El Suplemento Best Album Award for Denominación de origen and the Manolo Caracol and Camarón Awards at the 18th National Flamenco Singing Competition of Cordoba.
